269 The landowner shall allow any authorized person or persons to enter his land to carry out alterations, adjustment or improvement of service utility works and for purposes connected therewith which are reasonably necessary for the benefit of larger community or environment after reasonable notice.
A landowner may, after reasonable notice, make use of the adjoining land of another landowner so far as necessary for the purpose of erection, or repairing of fence, wall or building on or near his boundary line, but he may not enter the dwelling house of the neighbor without the consent of the latter. The neighbor may claim reasonable compensation if any damage is caused.

Transferring easement

286 Easement follows the dominant land when the latter is disposed of or made subject to other rights.
Right to easement upon division of servient land

287  In case of a division of the servient land, the easement continues to be a burden on each part. However, if the easement is not exercised and from the nature of the case could not be exercised over any subdivided plot, the owner of such plot may demand to be relieved from the easement.
